

There's Sue

© 2007 Will Stanley

Sue moved in, to the house next door, with two young boys and no man
I'd go over, and mow her lawn, and when she needed help, I'd lend a hand
For quite a while, things stayed that way
Cordial like good neighbors are
But then one fateful day,
She asked me if I'd jump her car
And I jumped too far.

Two houses close together
104 and 102
When love gets stale, a lover's eyes will wander
And temptation's right next door
There's no reason to be bored
Cuz there's Sue.

My wife Mary, is a real fine woman, and I really do love her through and through
If she figured out, bout me and our neighbor, she never let on that she knew
As time went by, my Mary changed
And I never seemed to catch her in the mood
I began to think two could play this game
And maybe she had her own version of Sue
If I only knew

Two houses close together
104 and 102
When love gets stale, a lover's eyes will wander
And temptation's right next door
There's no reason to be bored
Ask Sue.

One night it all came out
And I confessed about Sue
I asked Mary who her lover was
She gave a funny look and paused and said.....me too!

Our houses are close together
They're 104 and 102
When love gets stale, both lover's eyes will wander
And temptation's right next door
No reason to be bored
We've got Sue. (repeat and fade)
