

What Comes Next

© 2017 Will Stanley

You turned to me and asked me "what comes next?"
I'll tell you plain and try to express that
No matter how much I've ever loved before
I love you more
And rather than splurging on a wedding dress
Let's just elope and avoid all the stress
If you concur that this is for the best, then
Here's what comes next.

We'll build a love nest out in the woods
We'll plant a garden and heat with wood
We'll have a child or two and fill the house with song
Our bond will grow strong
And every now and then, when something goes awry
We won't get mad and we won't cry, cuz
We'll understand that we are truly blessed
And that's what comes next.

You and I see eye to eye on what is the key
To making our song a singalong
It takes sweet harmony.

Instrumental

Give me your hand and tell me you agree
And I'll put on the Canon in D and
We'll dance around the room in synchronized steps
Cuz that's what comes next.
That's what comes next.
Yes, that's what comes next.
